

EDITORIAL 2(2012)1DAMIR HRŠAK

Faculty of Metallurgy, University of Zagreb, Croatia
e-mail: editor_HAE@mail.inet.hr

At the beginning of our second year of issuing I am pleased to be the whiteness of The Holistic Approach to Environment passing its inception phase and awaiting its bright future. As a chief editor I am pleased to verify that the magazine has its audience and that it is read outside Europe as well. In this issue we publish the first article submitted by a non-European authors. It is also to be emphasized that our magazine has been recognized by secondary data basis thus enlarging our visibility in the web space.

I am convinced that the number of supporters of the holistic approach to environment will increase in the following years within the scientific and general public, because the partial approach to the protection of human environment shows more and more of its insufficiencies. Materialistic biases covered by a thin layer of intellectualistic pretence endangers a dignified human existence and disgrace the idea of being an intellectual.

From the position of power (regardless of its scale), the ones who define ecology as removal of eligible amount of industrial leftovers exhibit an alarming misunderstanding and dangerous primitivism. Responsible intellectuals are obliged to confront such an opinion from their viewpoints respectively, taking the stand of holistic environment as well. It does not matter which viewpoint we present – city, country or the whole world as it is necessary to act and confront the destruction of dignified future. Regardless of the country and the city, it is moral duty of each person to take care of everybody and act on everything around him/her.

However, the efficiency is sometimes a minimal one, but consciousness demands at least expressing an opinion on the problem, no matter which part of the world it occupies.

In this context we should rekindle our memories on the late professor Alenka Rastovčan Mioč. Her early death stopped her constructive endeavour in promoting the holistic approach to environment in Sisak, Croatia and worldwide. She has remained an inspiration for a relentless persistence on standing the spiritual rather than the material grounds and an inspiration for amicable and devoted work in the process of transfer of knowledge and scientific exploration.

The year 2012 is the year of catastrophic predictions. Some interpretations of old prophecies claim that the general catastrophe and cataclysm can be expected on 21 /12/ 2012. But they shall not come true! The Earth will keep on turning and The Holistic Approach to Environment shall be issuing, I can assure you, even in the year 2013.

In my opinion, human evil regardless of its apparent strength has no energy potential to destroy the Earth. The energy potential implies primarily the spiritual energy and consequentially the ability of material manifestation of energy. The Universe is logos, not chaos. The human evil can lead to the destruction of the civilisation as we know it, abolishing the fruit of soil and love of many generations, but it can never reach the level of the Creator's genius. Every civilisation in the attempt of the destruction of mother Earth reaches the level of its self-destruction.

In my opinion, the order set by the Creator is absolute and there is no coincidence neither in the spiritual nor in the material universe. The widely known natural law of action and reaction is mirror image of spiritual law of causes and consequences. In our life that law can be ignored but it cannot be changed or neglected.

I strongly believe that, in spite of all the greed, arrogance and evil of many people who rule the west and the east, the Absolute love and amicability as spiritual essence protect the world and all the living creatures on it. Free will allows us all to participate in the universal amicability.
Quisque sponte sua bonus fit.